The collection of contact data as per sentence 1 may also be carried out in electronic form, as long as a sufficiently precise documentation of the data specified in sentence 1 no. 1 is ensured. Authorities, courts and public bodies that perform tasks in the public interest or undertake acts ordered by a public authority may also collect personal data in accordance with clauses 1 and 2 as part of the entry procedure for the relevant buildings or premises.

The responsible authority can demand that an infection protection concept be drawn up, either generally or in individual cases. Unless otherwise specified, the infection protection concepts must be presented to the responsible local authority on request only.

(2) The relevant state ministry responsible for the sector, in consultation with the State Ministry of Health and Care, shall announce conceptual frameworks under infection protection law for specific sectors. 2. An infection concept which minimises the possible infection risks depending on the religious community and its religious practices must be put in place.

ARTICLE 9

Assemblies as defined by Article 8 of the German Constitution

(1) In the case of assemblies as defined by Article 8 of the Constitution which are held outdoors, a minimum distance of 1.5 m must be maintained between all participants. If necessary, the authorities responsible according to Article 24 sub-para. 2 of the Bavarian Assembly Act (BayVersG) must ensure that the infection risks arising from the assembly also remain limited to a reasonable level in other respects, by means of restrictions in accordance with Art. 15 BayVersG.

(2) Assemblies as defined by Article 8 of the German Constitution which are held in enclosed spaces and in which only vaccinated, recovered or tested persons take part can be held without any upper limit to the number of attendees; in other cases, the maximum number of participants allowed, including vaccinated and recovered persons, is determined by the number of available seats with a minimum distance of 1.5 m from other seats.

Compulsory school attendance remains unaffected. After a case of infection becomes known in a class, the pupils of this class must provide daily proof of a test result for five days of classroom teaching.
